1. What is a Reference List?

- A full reference list is a list of all the information sources (references) that have been cited in the text.
- A reference list appears at the end of the assignment or report and before any addendums.
- The reference list contains all the necessary information to help the reader find the original work.
- The reference list items must be arranged alphabetically by the author surnames – but not in bullet or numbered format.
- Important: Every reference must link to an in-text citation in the body of the work.
- A reference list is NOT a Bibliography. The IMM Graduate School requires a reference list and not a bibliography.

Remember:

- Items are listed only once in alphabetical order.
- Provide full details of the sources used in the text.
- Use italics as indicated in the examples that follow.
- Use parentheses ( ) or [ ] as indicated in the examples that follow.
- Use inverted commas “ ” as required (refer to the examples that follow).
- Use the correct URL address as indicated in the examples that follow.

2. In-text citation (referencing in the text)

What is in-text referencing?

- Each time a reference is made to someone else's work in a document, the author's name and the date of his/her work should be included within the text at the point where his/her ideas have been discussed. This is called citing the author's work.
- Remember: When in-text citation is used and there is more than one author at a time, the author's names should be listed in the order the authors appear on the title page of the book or article!

3. Which referencing system has been approved by the IMM Graduate School:

The IMM Graduate School follows the Harvard Referencing System in the listing of sources for academic texts, and NOT APA, Chicago, etc. Also note: The IMM Graduate School Harvard Referencing system is NOT similar to any other Harvard Referencing system, including the MS Word version.

As it is not possible to reproduce the total Harvard Referencing System in this document, only some basic examples are provided as a guideline.

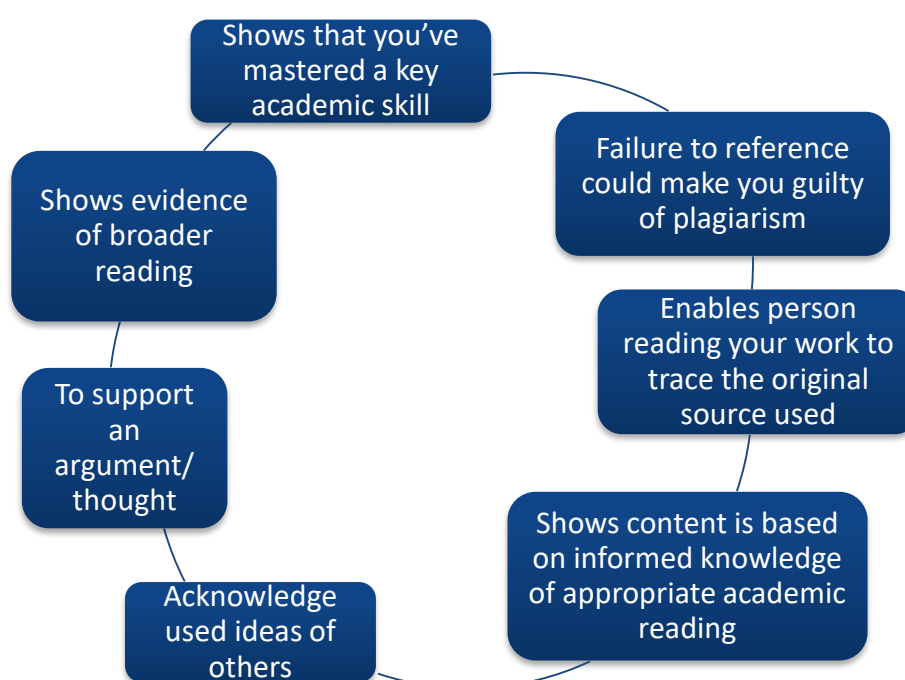

To recap:

All assignments and dissertations produced by the IMM Graduate School students must include in-text citations as well as a detailed list of references (the latter appears at the end of an assignment/report). Each in-text citation needs to link up to a reference at the end of the document where the reference list contains the sources of the citations. These two types of references always go hand in hand. This means that for each in-text reference a corresponding entry should be included in the list of references at the end of the document. The reverse is also true: for each entry in the list of references, an in-text reference should be included in the text.

Do NOT use a Bibliography. A bibliography is a list of sources that have been used in preparation of the assignment or dissertation but that you have not necessarily cited in the text.

4. Reasons to reference

Giving credit to the original author by referencing sources is the only way to use other people's work without plagiarising. Refer to the document called Plagiarism Avoidance Guide which you can find on the IMM Graduate School eLearn system.

5. When should sources be referenced?

Whenever words or ideas are borrowed the source needs to be acknowledged. The following situations almost always require referencing:

- Whenever quotes from a 3rd party are used
- Whenever paraphrasing is used you still need to reference: - you may be using your own words but you are still using the ideas of another author to whom you need to give credit
- Whenever an idea that someone else has already expressed is used
- Whenever specific reference is made to the work of another

- Whenever someone else's work has been critical in the development of your own ideas.

6. What happens when sources are not referenced?

Students failing to reference or failing to do it properly become guilty of committing plagiarism. Refer to the document called Plagiarism Avoidance Guide Policy to familiarise yourself with the sanctions that are applicable when found guilty of plagiarism.

7. Deconstructing a book reference

8. Book examples

Here are examples of what the format of the in-text citation in the reference list should look like. Remember, in-text citation appears IN the document at the section / sentence where the specific book / author is being used, and the reference list appears at the end of your document before any appendices.

In general, the following guideline will apply for any book that needs to be referenced at the end of your document:

Example when reference to the author(s) appears at the end of the sentence:

22. Secondary sources examples*Specific examples pertaining any secondary sources examples

When you cite an author who refers to or quotes another author, this must be clearly indicated in the text.

Chambers (1983, p. 25) gives Whiteley's (1979) definition of emotion as "a response to situations of one specific type ..."

In this example, the reference actually used was Chambers (1983), not Whiteley (1979).

A reference list entry must be made for Chambers, but can be made for both items if it is useful to your reader.

Reference: Chambers, P.K. (1983) Your emotions revealed. New York: Lacrima and Ductule.

Reference: Whiteley, B.C. (1979) 'Emotional response', Brain Talk, vol. 2, no. 12, pp. 234-5. (optional at your discretion)

23. How to use quotations

Use inverted commas to enclose the direct text. For short quotations (of less than 40 words), use a brief phrase to introduce the quotation. For example:

As Neville (2007, Chapter 1, pp.100-101) emphasises, "... you should cite all sources and present full details of these in your list of references.".

For longer quotations (of 40 words or more) a block quotation is required, without quotation marks, but clearly indented to indicate these words are not your own. For example:

Neville (2007, Chapter 1, pp.100-101) comments that: It can sometimes be difficult, if not impossible, to avoid using some of the author's original words, particularly those that describe or label phenomena. However, you need to avoid copying out what the author said, word for word. Choose words that you feel give a true impression of the author's original ideas or action and use these in your writing.

Therefore, treat the direct quote as follows: Slightly smaller font and indented from the left margin to distinguish it from the rest of the text. Also add the Chapter and page number.
